INTRODUCTION

Step on the Path

“To begin any strong practice is to turn the pages of your life to a new chapter.”

- George Leonard and Michael Murphy from The Life We Are Given

Congratulations! You’re stepping on a path of practice designed to create positive changes in you and your life. Integral Transformative Practice® (ITP) is a framework for creating healthy transformation of body, mind, heart and soul, a means for co-evolving all dimensions of your being.

This practice supports a balanced approach to life through clear intentions about the transformation you are seeking and diligent, daily practice to get there. As you are the steward of your practice, allow the path to unfold at a pace that nourishes you. ITP was designed to be a lifelong journey of learning, growth and personal transformation. We encourage you to meet the adventure with a spirit of curiosity, relaxation and joy.

Enjoy ITP for its own rich rewards. When you look back after practicing for some time, chances are, you’ll be surprised and delighted by your progress.

Consider your Intentions

“Ultimately, human intentionality is the most powerful evolutionary force on this planet.”

- George Leonard

Something brought you here. What was it? What transformation are you seeking in body, mind, heart and soul?

You don’t have to answer these questions to get started. Allow the inquiry to simply motivate you to take the next steps with your practice.

The Practice Guide

The Practice Guide exercises are created to help you:

1. Identify the transformation you are seeking
2. Assess growth opportunities in your body, mind, heart and soul
3. Begin practicing ITP to help you realize your potential

For best results, we recommend that you work on the Practice Guide exercises in tandem with reading The Life We Are Given by George Leonard and Michael Murphy and watching The Tao of Practice DVD. Please note that you can begin practicing on your own, but you may find greater support and enjoyment by practicing with a friend, family member or a group. Do what works best for you. Are you ready? Let’s get started!

INSTRUCTIONS

The Practice Guide consists of 3 sections with accompanying exercises:

1. Personal Review
 - Personal Review
 - Sample Personal Review
2. Integral Assessment
 - Integral Assessment
 - Sample Integral Assessment
 - Body, Mind, Heart and Soul Descriptive Terms
3. Creating Your Practice
 - Creating Your Practice
 - Sample Creating Your Practice

Part 1: Personal Review

Take a moment to read the questions listed in the Personal Review followed by a brief period of silence or meditation.

The questions in the Personal Review are designed to help you get a current snapshot of your life: what's working well, the challenges you are facing and the positive changes you wish to make at this time. A Sample Personal Review document is filled in to give you some ideas and help get you started.

Take as much time as you need to complete this exercise. You may find yourself writing more or creating your own form of inquiry about you and your life through drawing, painting or other creative forms of expression.

After completing the exercise, ask yourself:

- What have I learned about me and my life right now?
- What are my next personal evolutionary steps?
- How can practice support my growth?

Part 2: Integral Assessment

In the next exercise, Integral Assessment, you have the opportunity to assess your current level of growth and development in each dimension of your being: body, mind, heart and soul. You will also identify your ideal state in each dimension. This exercise helps to further clarify the transformation you are seeking and is a precursor to creating affirmations (see Chapters 4 and 5 in The Life We Are Given).

Before filling out the Integral Assessment, take a few moments in quiet reflection or meditation. Follow the rise and fall of your breath and then scan your body for tension. Send your breath to areas where you'd like to bring in relaxation and ease. Now place your attention on each dimension of your being, one at a time - body, mind, heart and soul - and ask yourself:

“What is my current condition in this dimension? What is my current level of functioning and satisfaction in this dimension?”

Take a look at Body, Mind, Heart and Soul Descriptive Terms to see descriptions associated with each of these dimensions. Use this sheet to help clarify your current condition in body, mind, heart and soul. Also refer to the Sample Integral Assessment to guide you in completing yours.

Now turn to the Integral Assessment and jot down your current conditions for Where I Am Now in body, mind heart and soul. Next consider Where I Want To Be or Ideal State of Being. By visualizing yourself in the future, you begin to set intentions to move in the direction of your transformed state.

For Questions and Challenges, Assumptions and Feelings, write down your comments about the difference between your current and future state of being so you can reflect more fully on the positive changes you are seeking at this time of your life.

Consider where you are “in balance” related to body, mind, heart and soul and where you are out of balance. Consider “imbalances” as opportunities for growth. Be patient and compassionate with yourself. Transformation results from clear self-reflection, intentionality and practice.

After completing the Integral Assessment, ask yourself:

- Which dimensions of my being are ripe for transformation?
- Which dimensions are functioning well for me?
- What transformation am I affirming in body, mind, heart and soul?

Part 3: Creating Your Practice

You are now ready to see how ITP can support your positive growth. Creating Your Practice is intended to engage you in practice at your own pace and serves as a means to realize your transformation, the objective of the ITP program!

Creating Your Practice spells out the ITP program in a modified way by listing a simplified version of the 9 ITP commitments (listed in the left column of the document). To review the 9 commitments in more detail, read Chapter 3, Stepping on the Path. (The 9th commitment, which focuses on service and helping others, was added recently and is not included in The Life We Are Given.) As with the other exercises, we recommend a quiet period of reflection or mediation before beginning.

After your period of reflection, review the Sample Creating Your Practice to clarify and guide you in the exercise.

In Where I Am Now, describe your current relationship to each commitment. In Where I Want to Be, describe the growth you want for yourself in each of the commitments. Finally, in Steps I'll Take to Get There, list the kinds of actions that will move you forward on your path of practice.

After completing this exercise, ask yourself:

- Which of the commitments am I ready to engage in?
- What are my next steps?
- How can I get support and reinforcement from others on my path of practice?

What's Next?

The Practice Guide exercises set the stage for creating your affirmations, an essential component of the ITP program and the 8th commitment. Read Chapter 4 to learn about the powerful nature of affirmations. In Chapter 5, you can find instruction on creating your affirmations.

If you would like further support with affirmations or any other aspect of ITP, our trainers and coaches are available to assist you. We want to see you get great benefit from your practice, so don't hesitate to call on us. The ITPI Team is here to serve you. Enjoy your practice!
