changing what it means to be human.

- This may happen through the genetic modification of humans, as well as merging biology with technology.

Reflect On: Are technological developments these days that are pushed upon the human race done so for the good will of humanity and the planet? Or are we viewed as slaves, here to serve the 1 percent? How do so many developments make their way into the mainstream without the approval of the masses?

The conscious and intelligent manipulation of the organized habits and opinions of the masses is an important element of democratic society. Those who manipulate this unseen mechanism of society constitute an invisible government which is the true ruling power of our country. We are governed, our minds molded, our tastes formed, our ideas suggested, largely by men we have never heard of.

If there's anybody who would know this, it would be Mr. Bernay's. He spent much of his life working for big corporations and government agencies like the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA).

Could it be true? Could a small group of powerful people and the organizations they run be involved in campaigns to manipulate human consciousness for their own selfish motives? It sure seems that way, especially in the age of COVID. I would argue that this has been quite obvious for a long time, but COVID has simply made more people aware of it. So what's the result when one comes to this realization? For starters, one starts thinking for themselves.

Klaus Schwab is the Founder and Executive Chairman of the World Economic Forum (WEF). As their website states, he has been “at the centre of global affairs for over four decades” and is “convinced that we are at the beginning of a revolution” that will literally change human beings. This in turn, according to him, will change the way we live, work and relate to one another.

These are concepts which he explores in his book, The Fourth Industrial Revolution.

Ubiquitous, mobile supercomputing. Intelligent robots. Self-driving cars. Neuro-technological brain enhancements. Genetic editing. The evidence of dramatic change is all around us and it's happening at exponential speed...Previous industrial revolutions liberated humankind from animal power, made mass production possible and brought digital capabilities to billions of people. This Fourth Industrial Revolution is, however, fundamentally different. It is characterized by a range of new technologies that are fusing economies and industries, and even challenging ideas about what it means to be human.

World Economic Forum

If one reads through the book, it's not hard to feel that this man views human beings as a group of cattle, or robots to be used to serve the more wealthy.

Schwab has emphasized that the fourth industrial revolution has now become a reality in the age of COVID. This is evident with developments like businesses moving predominantly online, like the Mark Zuckerberg's metaverse, vaccine passports and more. Humanity is moving online, further away from nature and it's only a matter of time when our biology itself starts to interact within this online world en masse. He's spoken about this at length including the fact that one day soon, human beings will be the ones changing.

The question is, is this direction society seems to be propelling towards a result of human nature? Or is this a direction society is moving towards because the "99 percent" as been "herded" or pushed and influenced by the "1 percent"?

These developments, in a society that is guided by leaders who are focused on service to others, ethics and morality could be beneficial. Technology and advancements are not the issue here, it's the consciousness and motives that drive these developments that are integral.

Schwab has referred to various world leaders as "global leaders of the World Economic Forum" and that they "penetrate cabinets." I've long been frustrated at the citizenry arguing over which politician is selected while have the power to decide what direction humanity takes, and what decisions are made. We still don't recognize this, and it's exactly why the manipulation of our consciousness and perception seems to be so vital.

I believe we have been pushed and encouraged to head in this "transhumanistic" direction, and that those who, as Bernay's says "manipulate this unseen mechanism of society" do so with enormous amounts of propaganda and psychological manipulation, or warfare if you will. Many routes humanity takes cannot be taken unless a massive amount of people are actually made to agree with it.

I think COVID is a great example of a crises that may have been caused by those who wish to profit off of it in various ways. This is not just monetary profit, but profit in a sense that it pushes humanity in a direction, like the "fourth industrial revolution" as Schwab calls it. There seems to be an element that dominates our society, and that is a group of powerful individuals who lust for more power and control that do so under the guise of good will and necessity. What they promote as necessary and good for the whole may actually be the complete opposite.

All of this also coincides with a time where those who oppose choices of big governments are silenced and subjected to extreme censorship and ridicule.

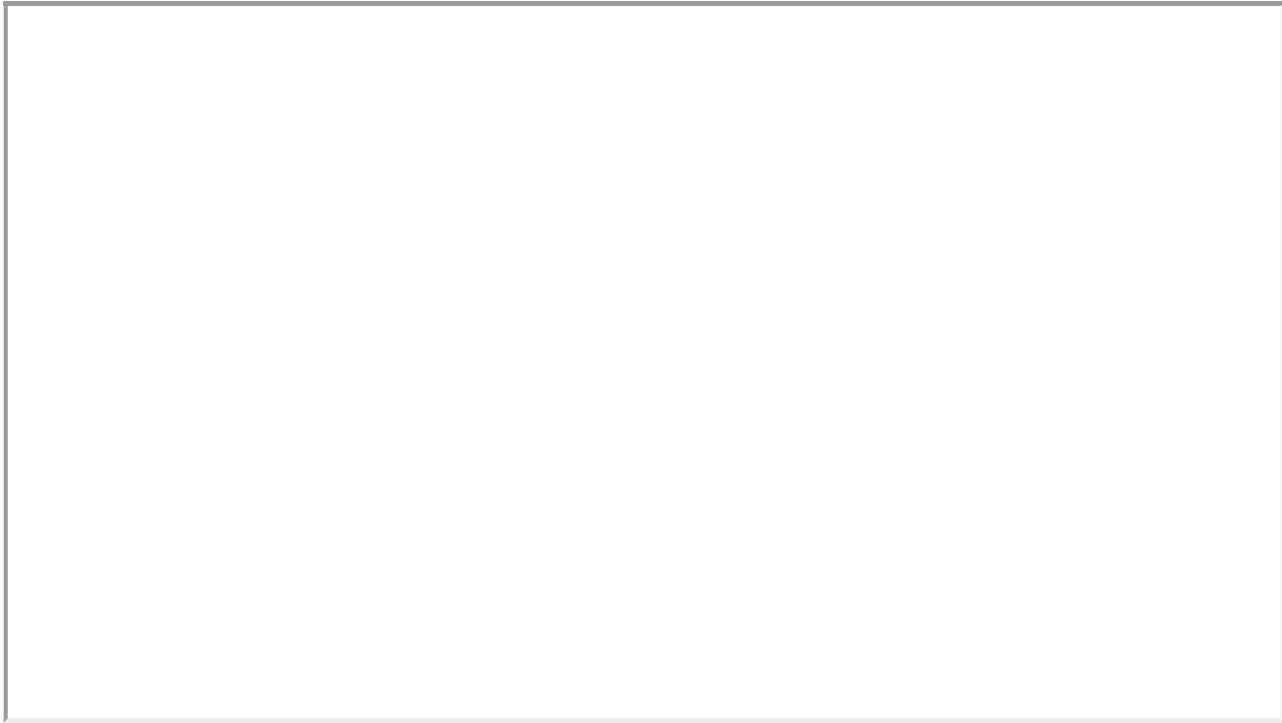

But there is a flip side to this coin. Each 'event' that pushes humanity further down this path of the "fourth industrial revolution" or "new world order" or "The Great Reset" is one that sparks a massive shift in human consciousness. People are "waking up" so to speak and asking more questions about the world, and why we live the way we do when we have the potential to create a human experience where everybody can thrive.
